represent an innovative ICF based approach for support and development of European health and disability policies.

The MHADIE Policy recommendations, that are the results of three years of research in 13 European Countries and that derived from the application of WHO-ICF Classification and its model in statistical, clinical and educational settings, will be presented.

They will help to design new European policies on health and disability, improve data analysis capacity and support the conception of disability as a concern of human condition, as expressed in the UN Convention for persons with disabilities.
